WATER AT CAMP.

The pipe line extension from the Huachuca Water company line near the McCaro residence is being extended to the road camp today and will be connected up tomorrow, which will put the water right into the camp and also to the mixing boards for the construction of the Lutton Arch bridge that is to cross the only big gulch between Tombstone and Bisbee, or at least it will be the biggest bridge between those points. It will be 100 feet long and about fifty feet high. This water connection will be of inestimable value to the camp and road work. There will be but little water hauling by truck for the balance of the work on this stretch and what is hauled will be for culvert work only and the small bridge to be erected four and one-half miles from Tombstone. It is believed that in another two weeks the road will be opened up almost to the big bridge and that traffic will stop going over the hills but will go via the old ball ground until the road is opened in its entirety. NOGALES CUSTOMS

At Nogales last Saturday Customs Inspector Andrew O'Connor went across the international line at that place, and immediately was placed under arrest by Mexican officers. The man arrested had a few days previously fired several shots at a Mexican smuggler, and it is the belief that this incident was partly responsible for his arrest when he crossed the border.

It has been the custom for men in the customs service of both nations to cross the line whenever their business makes it necessary, and Mexican officers daily cross the boundary line into Douglas, some of them many times a day. It was only a few days ago that a local American customs inspector was warned while in Agua Prieta that he would be placed under arrest if he did not return to this side at once.

O'Connor was set at liberty a few hours after his arrest.

JUNE HEAT WAVES

WILT LEGISLATURE

PHOENIX, June 12.—The house today passed the bill extending the franchise to citizens of the state of voting age now or to be in the military or naval service of the United States. The senate put the house capital punishment resolution under way and will give expression on it in the committee of the whole tomorrow.

The house showed a disposition hostile to the senate bill creating a council of defense and spent the greater part of the day considering one of its own. The test will come tomorrow when a choice must be made between the two. It is now conceded that neither bill can be put through with the emergency clause attached.

A temperature of 114 in the legislative chambers this afternoon inclined the members to an earlier adjournment and it was predicted that the session would close with the week.
